

01

PAOLA LENTI takes her 'friendly, simple, playful' design language even further with a collection dedicated to children. The KIDS COLLECTION, debuting at Milano Design Week 2025, features joyous, colourful and whimsical furniture scaled to child-friendly dimensions. Made of recycled, recyclable and biodegradable materials, the Kids Collection is not only designed for future generations, but also demonstrates a commitment to them.

paolalenti.it

02

Resembling a ski slope, Martin Hirth's ALP lounge chair for FEST owes its name to the organic shapes of a mountain formation. Composed of four tubular structures bent to the contours of a chair, its shape is both geometric and fluid. Available in 60 colours.

festamsterdam.com

03

A lounge chair inspired by its namesake, DUNE by SMARIN is an invitation to build landscapes both indoors and out. Made of foam with different densities for optimal support, the chair is a key feature of the space designed by Smarin at Paris Charles de Gaulle airport.

smarin.net

04

JAB ANSTOETZ and Studio Aisslinger have collaborated to create SHAPES. The acoustic panels not only dampen sound, but also create an interplay of light and shadow in the spaces in which they're used. Different rotations of the panels influence the patterns that emerge upon installation, opening up a wide range of possibilities.

jab.de aisslinger.de

05

The ME MIRROR by FEARON features a colourful aluminium mirror frame made of cylinders connected by flat sheets, reflecting the simplicity of form and distinct interpretation of proportions that characterize the Australian design studio founded by two brothers in 2019.

fearon.shop

06

KABOOM is a sturdy statement chair that can be used indoors or out. Its chunky style isn't just about looks: the thicker the hollow forms on the rotationally moulded chair, the sturdier it is. Designed by Studio Roderick Vos for FATBOY, the chair is made entirely from recycled polyethylene and comes in six pastel colours.

fatboy.com